SOME EXCITEMENTS. SPORTS SEE TWO PUT OUT.

Gardner and Rose Are Beaten by Better Men.

Walsh Beats Eddie Menney in Ten Fast Rounds.

Only Small Crowd Sees Very Good Fight Card.

Jimmy Walsh beat Eddie Menney, ten rounds, and showed Howard Gardner, night rounds. Frank Carney knocked out Harry Rose, seven rounds. Mike Kutchos beat Oyma, six rounds.

A slashing good card drew but a fair-sized house to the Pacific Athletic Club pavilion last night and the crowd must have got the worth of their money, for there were two knockouts, lots of go and spilled, and some fine boxing in the main event between Jimmy Walsh and Eddie Menney.

The bout between Walsh and Menney was a fast and snappy one, and showed Walsh was always the aggressor, and some of the gallery gods who thought he was a "bum" because he did not knock out Menney should remember that the local boy is a very good one, and only lost because he was outpointed.

Walsh started the fight with a hard left hook which came out of a clinch, but Walsh came right back and landed the harder blow, and the fight was a hammer-and-forges business, for Menney was wild and tired, and yet he showed in great vigor, but he was up immediately to avoid possible danger. It was Carney's fight, and he was up immediately to avoid possible danger.

Walsh claimed that his right hand was not in the best of shape, having hurt it some weeks ago, but he was satisfied to go into the fight with it.

The first knock-out came in the fight between Frank Carney of Chicago and Harry Rose of this city. There was too much class here for Rose, for Carney banged him in the stomach and then threw his left up into the face with the same movement. These body blows, which began to land in the first round, were what did the business for Rose and he apparently had no defense for them in avoiding them.

Soon after the seventh began, Carney slammed Rose's left arm into the stomach as they came out, Carney caught Rose's short left hook on the jaw and scored him. He was down in the fourth and when he arose Carney swung again on the stomach and put Rose down and out. As he lay on his back and before the referee could begin counting, Rose's seconds threw up the sponges.

SECOND KNOCK-OUT. The third bout was another knock-out. Dale Gardner going out in the eighth round from a smash on the jaw delivered by Howard Baker. This was a good scrap and Gardner showed a lot of gameness any way, he first and second rounds were slashing ones, with the honors about even, but in the third round Gardner was hit with a short right wallop on the jaw and he went down. He stayed for five seconds and then managed to stall out the round. He came out in the fourth round on the run and actually had a shade the best of it, rushing Baker and scoring him.

CHAPTER XXV.

THE PAUPER AND A WOMAN.

Max and Charlie Rolfe went pale.

"You're not serious?" You yourself.

"No, I know—I know—only—"

"Only what? Surely you do not disagree with me!"

"In a sense I don't, but I'm anxious to clear up this matter as far as you yourself are concerned."

Rolfe said that he had shaken his head, but he had seen him in Cromwell Road. Max was now debating in his mind whether he had not suspected Charlie unjustly. It is so easy to suspect, and so difficult to satisfy one's self of the actual truth.

The mind is, alas! too apt to receive ill-directed impressions contrary to fact.

"It is already cleared up," Rolfe answered without hesitation. "I was not wrong. You were entirely mistaken. Besides, my dear chap, why should you go there when I had been particularly asked by Max not to visit the house?"

"Why did she ask you?"

"Only the night before. That very fact is, in itself, curious. She urged me that whatever might occur, I must not go to the house."

"Then she anticipated something—"

"It seems as though she did."

"And she told Marion something on the night when she and her father disappeared?"

"I know."

"You know what she told her?"

"No, Marion refused to tell me, I wish I could induce her to speak. Marion knows the truth—that's my firm belief."

"And mine also."

"The two girls have some secret in common," Rolfe said. "Can't you get Marion to tell you?"

"She refuses. I've asked her half a dozen times already."

"I wonder why? There must be some reason."

"Of course there is. She is loyal to her friend. But tell me honestly, Charlie, do you know the doctor's whereabouts?"

"I tell you honestly that I haven't the slightest idea. The affair is just as great a mystery to me as to you."

"But why have you kept away from me all day?" Barclay asked. "It isn't like you."

"Well," answered Rolfe, with a slight hesitation, "to tell you the truth, because I thought your manner had rather changed towards me of late."

"Why, my dear fellow, I'm sure it never has."

"You suspected me of being in that house on the night of the disappearance?"

"No, of course, because I saw you."

"Because you thought you saw me?"

"Charlie said, correcting him: 'You would not misjudge me for that.'"

"No. But your theory regarding the doctor's disappearance, I must admit, caused some suspicion in my mind."

"Of what?"

"Well, of prevaricating in order to shield a friend. I may be wrong."

"I am not shielding her!" he declared. "There is nothing to shield. I love her very much, but I cannot love her devotedly in return. Cannot you imagine, Max, my perturbed state of mind now that she has disappeared without a word?"

"Has she sent you no secret message of her safety?" Max asked, seriously.

"And you do not know, then, if she has not met with foul play?"

"I don't. That's just it! 'Some-times'—and he rose from his chair and paced the room in agony of mind. 'Sometimes—I feel as if I shall go mad. I love her—just as you love Marion! Sometimes I feel assured of her safety—that she and her father have been kidnapped for ransom. And then at other times—"

"At other times?"

"At other times I feel assured of her safety—that she and her father have been kidnapped for ransom. And then at other times—" young man was released from custody.

He continued to work in the vegetable garden until yesterday.

The tailor made a good vintage in behalf of his son and was not confused by the severe cross-examination by Assistant United States Dist. Atty. Stewart.

He said that he came to this country many years ago, established a store on Depot street, and prospered for a time, but finally business reverses obliged him to become a tailor. He asserted that his son worked with him for a number of years, and that the family would still be in San Francisco, had it not been for the earthquake disaster.

"After my wife, Geo. Chik, a friend and myself came to Los Angeles," the witness continued, "through the intervention of a Chinese friend, I secured a job as a tailor in a small shop on Broadway street. My son worked at odd jobs for a while and then somebody told me about the vegetable garden at Compton. My son likes outdoor work better than a trade. I had little insurance money and I borrowed some more from a friend. I paid $200 for a share in the garden. Since he has been there, Geo. has given me about $50. He is a good boy and a hard worker. That is why we feel so bad about his arrest."

Attorneys Varlet and Barber, for the defense, drew out a connected account of hard times encountered by the family and showed that the son had saved most of his earnings for the parents.

"Being a merchant myself, married to a Chinese girl in San Francisco and all my children born in there, I did not know that it was necessary to have papers," explained Geo. Chik.

"When the American government permit my children to remain with me for over 20 years and then seek to send one of them back to China?"

It developed during the hearing that one of the sons did go back to the land of his forefathers to study for a government position. Two others, who were in Oakland for several years, are now in New York.

"We are confident that the defendant is trying the usual Mongolian game," said Chief Inspector Ridgway.

He has information to the effect that the young man was born in China and probably came to this vicinity from Mexico. I do not believe that Geo. Chik is his father and the woman looks far too young to be his mother. Whenever a Chinaman is arrested, he tries to fix up a story similar to one told by today's witness. We have so many dealings with the race that we naturally distrust their accounts."

On the other hand, Attorney William J. Varlet is so confident of his client's right to be in this country that he is prepared to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary.

The image shows the front cover of a book. The cover is primarily a dark, mottled grey or black color with a fine, grainy texture. A vertical strip of a different material, possibly a lighter-colored cloth or leather, runs down the right edge of the cover. This strip is also textured but appears smoother than the main cover material. The spine of the book is visible on the right, showing the same dark, textured material. The overall appearance is that of an old, well-used volume.

QUEEN REIGNS OVER ARROWHEAD FETE.

Crowned Amid Rejoicing and Gorgeous Scenes, and Attended by Court of Fluffy Fairies—San Bernardino in Colors Adorned.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

SAN BERNARDINO, May 19.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] San Bernardino is at its fete tonight. The great Festival of the Arrowhead has been formally opened. When darkness fell like a soft mantle over the Gate City, the gaudy booths and the noisy revelers were blotted out. Suddenly, a million fireflies awoke. The streets were rivers of flames. Long lanes of scintillant dots glinted red and white and orange and green. The buildings stood out with necklaces of fire, with gorgeous outlines in carnival incandescence. In many places the colored radiance framed the mystic Arrowhead, the signet of the gods, while the real arrowhead, high up in the mountain, watched silent, immutable and serene beneath the skies.

A gentle queen began her reign, and was crowned amid rejoicing and gorgeous spectacles. A little queen won anew the hearts of the people, and a fairy court of fluffy little beings, within whose crowns the stars themselves twinkled, assisted in enacting the ancient legend of the Arrowhead.

At 7:30 o'clock the grand stand opposite the Queen's pavilion was a mass of humanity, and the streets below resembled the crush of feet wading in Los Angeles or a festa parade. The Catalina Band began the alluringly weird music of the "Kickapoo Maiden," and in the red light which transformed the pavilion into a great rose, Indian maidens danced and slipped one by one into the circle of flame.

By and by the braves followed, and the fairy godmother who changed them all into such lovely people, forgot the coachman. He was just a plain importation from Erin, and he did not even wear a wig.

M. M. WILLOWY QUEEN.

Miss Lola Sargent was a slim, willowy queen, with a lovely face and gorgeous court robes, that swept behind her as she moved. Up the steps she was led by her prime minister, and the queen was placed upon her girlish head by little Queen Mildred.

Mayor Hanford then presented the keys of the city to her majesty and retired to his office for the space of her reign. President Cooley the Festival Association welcomed the people and Judge W. F. O'Neil extended cordial greetings to the thousands of visitors.

The Queen's proclamation was read to her willing subjects.

"It is with a heart full of confidence and optimism that the Queen extends welcome to her subjects, the confidence born of an intimacy with these subjects and their level kingdom," she began.

"Snatched from the aborigine who early roamed the plain, the development of San Bernardino has excited the wonder of the modern era. The days of the pioneer are past, but there is still a task to do, a virgin field for the better not, who love their native or their adopted home, and who toil for the upbuilding of a peaceful population in this fair land."

"How many of the Queen's subjects realize the value of the treasure house about them? How many are using the splendid aboriginal dance was carried out until the fast of the ancient inhabitants of the San Bernardino Valley slipped away into silence and mystery.

United States soldiers then appeared upon the scene. Co. K of the National Guard of California, going through various evolutions. A door opened high in the head of the arrow above the pavilion, and the electric light of civilization, brought the light of civilization. She represented the spirit of the arrowhead, and the electric bulb wound about the pillars and outlining the arrowhead burst into the brilliancy of noon. Sixteen exquisite little fairies, in the prettiest of airy dresses, fitted on the stage and took their places at each side.

Tiny heralds and pages in courtly garb, with courtly manners to match, ushered in San Bernardino's most popular little girl, the Queen of the Juvenile Court, to welcome the Festival Queen, Miss Lola Sargent. A tall, thin, and the mass of humanity in the street parted like the Red Sea for the royal highness to pass through. It looked like a chapter from Cinderella or some old court pageant on the Louis. The girls, with powdered hair, wore frocks of stiff pompadour brocade, and the men wore in elaborate court costumes, but alas,

"Let you be men of majesty and develop the country. Let you be builders for great is he who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, or who builds cities and tills soil where coyotes howled before he came. Blessed are the builders of States, the men of action, captains of industry who foresee the greatness of California."

"Then long live the builders! Success to every influence that is making San Bernardino a realm of thriving in the heart of the desert! Success to the Festival of the Arrowhead!"

SPANGLED BEAUTIES.

The little spangled beauties in the background should not be forgotten. One thrifty maid did not intend that her ruffled garments should be rumpled and spent the time carefully fluffing out her pink attachments to their utmost circumference.

The fairy court formed an enchanting part of the spectacle, with their courtly dances. Then the maid and courtiers of the Queen danced a minuet, using garlands of flowers in the through which they exchanged beam- ing glances.

After the whole spectacular performance the Queen and her court led the way to the ball pavilion. Here another gay scene was presented. Two great silken flags, the largest in the West, roofed the big building, and countless emblems and pennants were mingled with carnival lights, while the walls were sheathed with great branches of the date palm. At the far end, on a raised dais, the Queen and her court took their places, after marching through a double row of San Bernardino's representative citizens, their wives, and the members of the Reception Committee. After paying their devotions to the royal lady, the court people repeated the beautiful minuet figures, and the ball was on.

CARNIVAL SPIRIT.

Outside the carnival spirit ran riot through the streets the pretty girls, for whom the Gate City is famous, and the pretty visitors as well, were the victims of many pranks, all good natured and jolly. The midway, with its many attractions, came to a joyous life, but the wheels of fortune were shut up by order of the Chief of Police, before a single revolution was made.

It is a wheel of fortune a game of chance? This was a question San Bernardino had been trying to evade. The District Attorney simply reiterated

GREAT SCHOOL OF LAW HERE.

Important Changes Planned by Local University.

Course Will Supply the Most Exacting Demands.

Rapid Growth Necessitates Larger Quarters.

When public announcements are made at the coming commencement of the College of Law, University of Southern California, two important changes will be explained in detail. One relates to the establishment of a post-graduate course, which will represent the "last word" in legal education. The other will deal with removal into larger quarters, which are not yet decided upon.

The disciples of Blackstone will hold their commencement exercises at Bumpson Auditorium, June 15. David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford University, will deliver the address of the morning. President Howard of U.S.C. will preside and award the diploma.

The College of Law, which occupies the third floor of the Bumpson building, Third and Broadway, is at present the largest law school west of Chicago. Last year the St. Louis school outnumbered it, but this year the local institution heads the list.

It has grown from a nucleus of fifteen students in 1877, and at the present rate of increase, there will be over 100 students on next year's roster. As a purely local institution, the bench and bar of Southern California have taken great pride in its progress, and many of them are on the staff of instructors because of their great desire to see a great law school built up in this section, which shall attract students from the entire Southwest.

Beginning this fall, a post-graduate course will be offered. The degree of bachelor of laws in any accredited law school in the country entitles the holder to enter the one-year post-graduate course, but students must have the LL.B. degree to take the course.

The curriculum includes lectures on international law, Spanish and American land and mining law, interstate commerce, public officers, logic and codification. One of the most important courses will be that given by George H. Smith on jurisprudence and American common law.

Among the lecturers already secured are William J. Hunsaker, Walter F. Hays, E. W. Camp, Warren E. Lord, Willoughby Rodman, William H. Phelps, James Harmon Hoag and E. W. Mullis.

"We feel justly proud of the rapid growth of our school," said Secretary G. W. Craig yesterday. "We owe a great debt of gratitude to the judges and members of the bar for their loyal support. They give their time as lecturers, and while paid a compensation, it represents but a small part of what their services are actually worth."

The secretary added that this fall alone gives the school great advantage over institutions which pay salaries to resident instructors. While not wishing to underestimate any plan to establish a post-graduate school in the North, he says that the U.S.C. school, with its proposed post-graduate course, is able to supply the most exacting demands for higher legal education.

The method of instruction is patterned somewhat after that in vogue at the New York Law School, and the law department of the University at Washington, D. C. It is a combination of lectures, text-books and study of cases.

MONEY BALM.
SEEKS FORTUNE AS DAMAGES.
MINE MANAGER IS SUING FOR HUNDRED THOUSAND.

Stockholders in Seal of Gold Company Accused of Maliciously Causing His Arrest—Charge of Embodiment Bullion Dismissed at Recent Hearing—Trial in Riverside Court.

A suit for $100,000 damages has been brought in the Superior Court at Riverside by H. A. Landwehr against P. T. Evans and Alexander Strachan of Riverside, because of the injury which the plaintiff alleges was done to his reputation by his arrest and imprisonment on three charges of embezzlement, with the intention of injuring his good name.

Landwehr, who is manager of the Seal of Gold Mining Company, states in his complaint that Evans and Strachan, who are large stockholders in the concern, maliciously and without reasonable or probable cause, brought about his arrest on April 23 on three charges of embezzlement, with the intention of injuring his good name.

He was accused of appropriating gold bullion from the mines to the value of $100,000. After a hearing before Justice Pierce the charges were dismissed.

George H. Moore, Arthur L. Hawes and A. D. Laughlin of Los Angeles are attorneys for the plaintiff in the present suit.

PERMANENT AUDITOR.
New Financial Officer Appointed Here by Southern Pacific Is Los Angeles.

For the first time the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific is to have a resident auditor. Heretofore a traveling auditor of the railroad has been sent here whenever thought necessary by E. B. Segar, chief auditor of all the Harriman properties. But so great has become the business of this southwestern district, and so constant the call for a head of the local financial system of the railroad, that this will all be changed.

Yesterday it was authoritatively announced that G. W. Mulka is to be district auditor, with headquarters in this city. Mr. Mulka will assume his position immediately. He is well known in Los Angeles, and until the 10th inst., was the auditor for the Pacific Electric, a position he left to take that with the Southern Pacific. His appointment will be of particular interest to all persons who have any financial dealings with the Southern Pacific here.

MYSTERIOUS STEAMSHIP.
Enters Port of Gaviota After Remaining Off Coast Several Days—Of Bolais Suspicious.

Immigration officials were notified last night of the arrival of a mysterious Japanese steamer at Gaviota. The vessel carries a large crew. When the captain attempted to land his men the authorities at the small seaport prevented it.

The immigration authorities of this city telegraphed the officials at Gaviota to detain the vessel until an investigation can be made.

The steamer had been seen off the coast for several days before she came into the port, and it was this that led the officials at Gaviota to telegraph to this city for instructions.

This morning an immigration officer will go to the seaport to question the ship's captain and examine his papers.

It is thought the vessel may contain Chinese who are trying to land in violation of the immigration laws. The captain stated last night that he came in for food and water. He said he carried a cargo of oil, though the vessel does not look like an oil steamer.

RACE HORSE DISABLED.
Valuable Animal Belonging to Spaulding Escapes from Stables and Seriously Injured.

Sultan, the $5000 race horse belonging to Rufus F. Spaulding of Miramonte, was so seriously injured Monday night that its recovery is despaired of. The animal is being treated by a veterinarian in the Spaulding stables, but whether it will ever be able to run another race is doubtful.

Some time during the night the animal broke loose from its tether in the stables and wandered around the neighborhood. In the course of its journeyings it came into contact with a barbed-wire fence, which it tore down. It also smashed through the glass top of a hothouse. When it was discovered in the morning by one of Mr. Spaulding's groomes it was bleeding from a dozen gashes.

DOHENY SELLS OIL FOR LAND.

Contract With the Associated for Two Years.

Twelve Hundred and Eighty Acres at Coalinga.

Gusher Is Struck in Mexico, Race for Lease.

A contract with the Associated for the disposal of 60,000 barrels a month of its oil output at approximately 25 cents a barrel for two years, and for its future product at Coalinga, a total of 5000 barrels daily, a purchase of 1280 acres in the last named district for $1,772,000, and the completion of new wells west of the city, constitute the recent movements of the American Petroleum Company. The land buy was made by President Doheny personally but it is to be turned over to the company as soon as the necessary formalities are completed.

The Sherman wells on the Niles ranch are being connected with the Los Angeles-Pacific Railroad for shipment direct to the Redondo power plant which is taking oil under contract. This assures a steady income at once and it also seems like a doubly shrewd move for the Associated as it apparently eliminates what might otherwise be a formidable competitor in the market of the state.

The American Petroleum Company owns the Niles Lease Oil Company at Sherman and the control of the San Ardo and Menlo companies in Monterey county, besides minority interests in the Mendocino and Pacific Petroleum at Sherman.

The purchase at Coalinga—the biggest deal next to the California Oil Fields, Ltd.'s great purchase—takes in the west half of section 30-32-15 bought from H. H. Welch and A. V. Lacey of Fresno, and H. U. Maxfield of San Francisco for $500,000; the west half of section 13 one mile north and the west half of section 6 one mile north of the northern line of the last, both purchased from the Pleasant Valley Farming Company for approximately $1,000,000, the south half of 32-15, the west half of the Alax Oil Company and the east from Thomas A. O'Donnell. Mr. O'Donnell becomes the company's Coalinga superintendent.

All this is in the heart of the field. The last named line right between the best developed sections, viz. 21 on which are the wells of the California Monarch, Guthrie, California Diamond, Confidence and Southern Pacific, and 23, nearly all of which is owned by the same company. The other tracts are also close to other good wells although little developed themselves. Rigs are to be started immediately on all four half sections.

Race for Valuable Lease. A $25,000 lease was the rich prize for which local oil operators raced in the Sherman field last week. The parties were L. H. Sloan, one of the old-time operators of the state, Ion Clark, E. P. Bryan, W. R. Wheat and W. D. Wilson, who were put to it "rip and tear" to comply with terms of the almost expired lease. On Thursday side were the owner of the land, Mr. Benedict, who had been offered $25,000 by other parties if they forfeited their rights, and the parties who had made the offer. The territory is about a mile north of Beverly, and about two miles from Sherman Junction.

The lease was within five days of expiring a week ago yesterday, when Mr. Sloan took it over, unless a well was started within that time. On Wednesday he had his associates together, and on Thursday afternoon by 3 o'clock material had begun to arrive on the ground. Between thirty and forty men were at work erecting the rig, which was ready and began spudding in the well in time to win the race.

The combination behind the company is a strong one, and the land gives indications of having oil. If the belt extends that far, as it is thought it does, it should be very successful. The erection of the rig was done in record time, with the greatest force employed on any such occasion.

Premier's Flowing Well. The Premier Oil Company office in this city has just been advised by Superintendent Kurts that its well No. 1, on the southeast corner of section 34-28-14, adjoining the Claremont on the south, at Coalinga, is flowing at the rate of 500 barrels a day. Its third well is down 450 feet. The Premier is owned by Timothy Spellacy and J. D. Thomson of Pasadena.

No Strike in Monterey. E. Doheny, who has just returned from his properties in Monterey county, says that there is no foundation for the report circulated here a few days since that the Standard had struck oil there. There are, however, the best indications in the wells that it is drilling.

CHILD-STUDY MEETING. The Child-study Circle of the Twentieth-street school will meet in room 5 today at 3 p.m. Mrs. Varco, the State Treasurer of the organization, will speak. This circle has purchased a beautiful banner which will be a premium, for one month, to the room having the greatest number of mothers present at the previous meeting of the Child-study Circle.

I. O. Rhoades, purchasing agent of the Southern Pacific, and F. W. Thompson, a high official of the same company, both registering from San Francisco, are staying at the Alexander, while looking after affairs in the local offices of the railroad company.

MALTED BARLEY is digested food. Hops are a tonic—also an aid to sleep. That's what you get in beer. That's why the doctor says "drink beer" when one lacks vitality.

Beer quiets the nerves, not because of the alcohol. There is only 3 1/2 per cent. of that. But because of the hops, for hops are soporific.

A bottle of Schlitz at bedtime induces sleep. In every way the drinking of beer is good for you, providing the beer is pure. It is only the wrong beer that leads to bad after effects and to biliousness.

Schlitz beer is pure. We spend more on purity than on all other costs of our brewing. Even the air that cools it is filtered. And every bottle is sterilized.

There is all the good of beer, and none of the harm, in Schlitz.

Ask for the Brewery Bottling. Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz. To avoid being injured upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

FIND ACID AND BODY IN DIFFERENT ROOMS.

Police Claim Have Discovered Vital Flaw in Defense of McComas. Unexpectedly Fling Sensation Into First Day of Murder Trial.

There are mysteries developed yesterday in the McComas murder trial.

Why were the acid and the murdered woman found in different rooms?

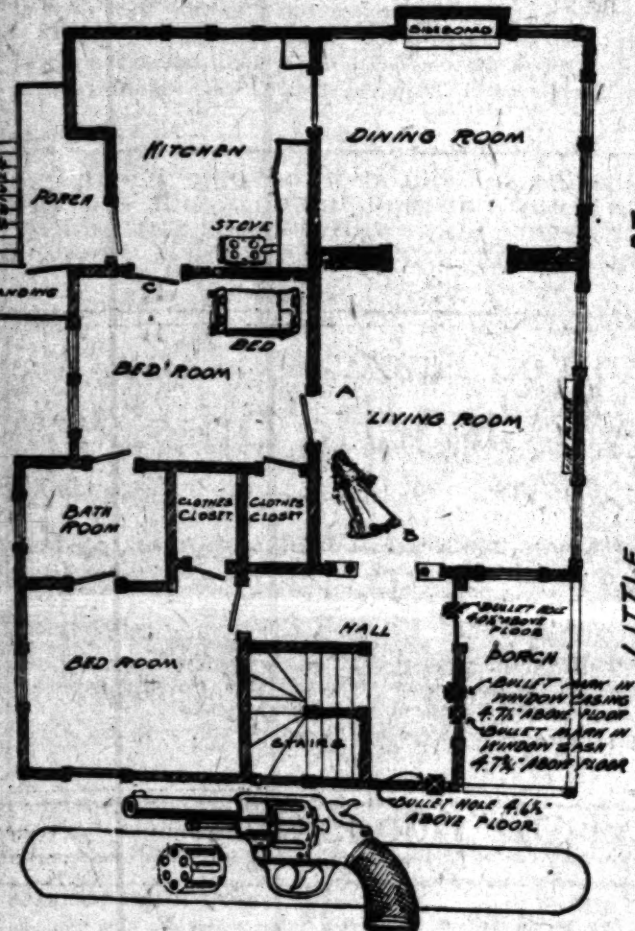

The defense of McComas is that Mrs. Noyes was throwing vitriol on him when he shot her to save himself. The police now claim to have discovered that the murder occurred in a part of the house in which no acid whatever was found.

How are the exploded cartridges in McComas's revolver explained? Instead of the two shells being adjacent on the cylinder, one was directly under the hammer and the other directly opposite. Did a struggle occur in which fingers caught the hammer and caused the cylinder to whirl, or was the revolver reloaded after the killing?

How account for the extraordinary position in which the woman's body was found? She was lying on her face, with the toes of her shoes extended and arms under the body, her face on a folded-up rug. Had her body been dragged across the floor by some one?

What was in the mysterious cup found on the kitchen stove? One detective and a chemist say it was sulphuric acid. A policeman swears McComas told him it was olive oil.

Why was a newspaper hung over a portion of the acid-spattered door?

Official Diagram Used by the Court

To show the premises where the killing took place, at Mrs. Noyes's flat, No. 726 Little street, Body shown in living room. A shows where McComas stood; B where the woman stood during the shooting. Back of the woman are indicated where the bullets struck. C is the kitchen door splattered with vitriol; bedroom floor and bed clothes also found splattered. Platel found in bed. On kitchen stove was cup of acid. Lower diagram shows peculiar position of the exploded cartridges in McComas's revolver.

The policeman who unexpectedly flung a sensation into the first day of the McComas murder trial, has a strenuous session coming.

"You can go," bitterly said Earl Rogers to the officer at the adjournment of court last night, "and I'll finish with you tomorrow."

"Oh, all right," replied the policeman in a tone of equal sarcasm.

An attempt will evidently be made today to shake his statement that McComas, when he shot the woman, was standing in such a position as to cut her off from the room in which the acid was found.

Asked yesterday how he knew the murder took place in the room without acid marks, Policeman Wyatt made the staggering reply that McComas said so himself, the night of the killing.

Rogers repeatedly declared yesterday that the police have been "doctoring" the evidence in the case, and forced one witness to admit that he had been told by a mysterious "some one" not to remember things too well.

SCARED, BUT DIGNIFIED.

The first witness called was a pretty little nurse in a long-tailed duck coat; her name is Dora Willy.

Miss Willy was scared, and tried to conceal that fact by an air of crushing dignity. But if there is anything that tends to detract from the terror inspired by crushing dignity, it is the fact that one's small feet dangle in mid-air, out of the big witness chair.

Had Miss Willy's feet reached the floor, the lawyers might have been annihilated by her dignity; but they were about three inches shy, so the lawyers were saved.

She said she was in a neighboring house, attending a patient who was dying, when she heard three shots and a scream.

Miss Willy couldn't say whether it was a woman's scream or a man's scream. Mr. Rogers asked her if it wasn't maybe a scream of a horse in pain. Miss Willy looked down disdainfully, and said she was sure it wasn't a horse screaming.

Mr. Rogers being properly sat on for his facetiousness, Miss Willy slid down from the chair and went away.

Two wounds were found in the woman's body.

Carry went to the telephone, which he found dripping with fiery acid. "God! boy," said McComas, "I rang up the police two minutes after I killed her."

Being asked if the woman had a gun, McComas said: "She had one, but I haven't been able to find it."

Carry said he helped McComas put oil on his burning face; then went through the house.

FINDS SULPHURIC ACID.

In the kitchen he found, on the gas stove, a cup half filled with sulphuric acid. Acid was not on the floor, but the door was splattered with it. A newspaper had been pinned on the door and this, too, was splattered.

More acid was in the bedroom, on the quilts and floor. Spots of acid were also at the entrance to the room where the body was found.

Rogers asked him on cross-examination he searched the bed for acid and the revolver. The police claim to have found the woman's revolver under the bed clothes, and Rogers was asked to produce it.

Rogers claimed this is a fraud and that the police placed the gun there themselves.

So Carry answered very cautiously, saying that he didn't find any pistol when he examined the bed; but he didn't hunt so very hard.

Rogers leaned over the table and pointed his fingers accusatorially at the witness. "Are you saying this," he thundered, "because you know the police claim to have subsequently found a gun in that bed?"

"Well, I know there was a lot of talk at the preliminary about it," said the witness naively. "It's a point that I didn't pull down the bed clothes very far."

"Oh, and you are making the point," said Rogers cuttingly.

Julius Koebig, chemist, testified that the cup found in the kitchen contained about an ounce of strong sulphuric acid. The chemist said the policeman whom Rogers apparently meditates skinning alive today.

NICE-LOOKING POLICEMAN.

He was a nice-looking, tow-headed policeman recently admitted to the force, named Wyatt.

He said when he arrived, McComas was sitting on the bed. He asked McComas for his gun, which was surrendered; it had acid on it.

He asked defendant why he had shot the woman. "She was throwing acid on me," said McComas. "She had a gun, and was afraid she would get it, and kill me." McComas told him she was throwing it on him in the kitchen.

He stated unequivocally that McComas told him the killing took place in the front room, however—the room in which no acid was found—merely an empty, overturned cup.

The prosecution holds, apparently, that this indicates the woman was trying to get away and was "doctoring" the evidence.

Wyatt says McComas indicated the places shown in the diagram, printed in "The Times," on the kitchen stove, where they both stood, the man being nearer the acid-spattered room than she.

"She was after me with a bottle of acid," he said to the policeman. "I thought you said a cup," said Wyatt.

"No, a bottle," insisted McComas. Being asked for the bottle, McComas told the policeman he destroyed it. He also stated that he placed the head of the woman on the rug pillow after she was shot.

Witness stated that he found an empty, overturned cup under a table in this living-room. He saw the cup in the kitchen, on the stove, but McComas stated that it contained oil he was putting on his face to counteract the burns.

There is a direct contradiction as to whether this cup contained acid.

Rogers pointed his finger at the witness and asked bitterly: "I want to know why you didn't tell about all this at the preliminary examination. Why didn't you tell then how McComas told of shooting this woman standing at the door of the front room?"

DOCTRINE OF SUGGESTION.

Wyatt said he thought he had told it in the lower court.

"Don't you know you put in that part about where they stood at the time of the killing at the suggestion of Detective Grant Roberts, and that the suggestion was made to you, just as a similar one was made to Night Watchman Sawyer?"

Deputy Dist. Atty. Fleming made a heated protest against what he called Rogers's theatricals, and Rogers flushed, but defended himself with cutting sarcasm.

Judge James has made a rule that no spectators shall be allowed to stand in the courtroom; only enough to fill the seats are admitted.

Millions for Exploitations.

Since the United States government began to patronize expositions, down to the Jamestown Fair, Congress has appropriated a total of $28,752,251 for world's fairs, of which only $485,000 has been spent west of the Rocky Mountains, at the Lewis and Clark Exposition.

ON INJUNCTIONS.

DENIES PETITION AGAINST UNION.

JUDGE REFUSES TO ENJOIN THE THREATENING LABORERS.

Says Courts Cannot Prevent Thugs Talking in an Ugly Manner in Their Efforts to Have Nineteen Free Workmen Discharged by the Chicago Railway Company.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES] CHICAGO, May 19.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Judge Charles M. Walker this afternoon denied the petition for an injunction to prevent the Street Car Union members from striking in an effort to have nineteen non-union employees discharged by the Chicago Railway Company.

In making his decision, Judge Walker quoted the recent message of President Roosevelt, in which the President criticized the courts for abuse of the injunctions against labor. In making his decision he said: "The scope of the injunction prayed in this case is far greater than in any ever issued by this court."

"Concede as we must the right of the complainants to maintain under the Constitution to dispose of their labor as they see fit, yet we must also grant the same right to the defendant. It is absurd to deny the right to strike and to tell why they are going to strike."

"It seems absurd to argue in one breath that laboring men may organize to protect themselves and in the next that they may not continue to be organized to protect themselves. Such an injunction would not properly issue and could not be sustained. It is therefore denied."

Workshop Apartment Building, With Clean and Well Lighted Rooms, Is Erected in Paris.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.] PARIS, May 19.—The abolishment of the "sweatshop" conditions, which surround the employment of many French working people is the object of serious experiment which has just been essayed in Paris in the form of the establishment of a workshop apartment building, where workers may both labor and live under the most modern and hygienic conditions at a minimum cost.

The experiment is the undertaking of the Societe Philanthropique, and it was made possible by the request of Mlle. Marie Souvestre, after whom the building is named. The building contains forty-eight workshops and apartments and the price per year for

Facts About Discount Furniture Sales

ONE PRICE PROMPT DELIVERY

FURNITURE doesn't have to be "reduced" in order to be cheap. In fact, as we showed in a former announcement, it takes a furniture expert to tell when the price has reached rock bottom if the "special reduction" idea is started.

Now, because this store is selling furniture every day in the year at the right price, we have not been accustomed to say much on the price question.

But we have now set out to make our "one-price-marked-in-plain-figures" policy thoroughly understood.

Let's consider the "discount" idea a minute. Some houses advertise "discount of 25 per cent. this week" or "everything 40 per cent. off."

If that merchandise was properly priced in the first place, it means—that the dealer is offering to pay you 25 per cent. to 40 per cent. interest for the use of the money.

No store can do that.

No store does do it, as you very well know.

We offer a 2 per cent. discount for cash and if we wanted to allow more we would have to start with the price just so much higher.

The worst thing about these "discounts" is, that you can never tell when you reach bottom. If the prices have been made high to give a chance for a big discount—

—what discount will it take to bring that price down where it belongs. In such a case every buyer must be a furniture expert.

We prefer to start the price right. As a result, customers often comment on the fact that our every-day prices are lower than many of the wonderfully discounted prices they read about.

You will see the difference if you make a few comparisons.

We and assert that our plan is the rational, straightforward way to sell furniture.

Nothing could please us more than to have you put this question of prices to the test. A few minutes in the store will prove more convincing than any number of such announcements. We shall appreciate the courtesy of a call.
